MISCELLANEOUS.

The huge steam-ship Great Britain, constructed at Bristol, England was found too large to admit of its egress from the dock-yard. Hence the following jeu d'esprit in a Bristol paper:

The "Great Britain's" Lament.

Pity the sorrows of a great steam-boat,
Which Bristol's sons have built of monster size
And doom'd it within its native dock to float,
The ridicule of all beholding eyes.

Full many a weary month they toil'd with care,
My ponderous frame to rear, with hearts of pride
And oft the wondering people came to stare,
At my vast fabric and wrought-iron side.

They got the Prince, from Windsor's 'calm retreat,'
To stand a sponsor to my future fate;
Gay was the scene, and brilliant was the fete,
Which gave to Bristol's ship Great Britain name.

They cheer'd, huzza'd, and cried 'God save the Queen,'
'His Worship,' Mr Mayor—on my behalf—
Due speeches made, and said, 'We've honor'd been'
To welcome here Victoria's better half.

Round flew champagne; they cheer'd, and one cheer more
And still another, rent the echoing air;
The shout resounded from the ship to shore—
'God save the Queen and Albert, royal pair.'

The feast was o'er—the brilliant day was past—
The wine was dashed upon my lofty bows;
And with due congrats made, the Prince, at last,
Had left, for dinner with his royal spouse;

When, sad reversion! men of method came,
And, 'cross my beam, their two-foot rules applied,
And on the Dock Directors cried out—'shame!'
To pass their narrow locks I'm found too wide.

And now within these walls I'm still confined,
Far from the bounding ocean kept ashore;
And wondering why that no one was inclined
To try that fatal measuring stick before.

Oh Dock Directors! hear my sad appeal,
Break down your wall and open wide your door;
And let me once the joys of freedom feel,
And never will I trouble Bristol more!

Speech of Mr Frelinghuysen.

The following is the report of the remarks made by Mr Frelinghuysen, in responding to a call made upon him at New York, on the return of the delegates from the Baltimore Convention:—

My Fellow Citizens, I thank you for your enthusiastic approbation of the nomination lately made by the Whigs of the United States, assembled in Convention at Baltimore. To be selected by such a body of distinguished patriots, is an honor I most deeply and sensibly feel, and the more deeply and sensibly, that it is so cheerfully ratified by my friends and neighbors in New York. I can only say, that such a mark of kindness will strengthen my attachment to Whig principles, if such strengthening were necessary, and that it is certainly calculated to make me strive to the best of my abilities, if I am ever put in a situation to carry out your principles, so as to merit this kindness, and to justify the confidence you have conferred upon me. (Cheers.)

Gentlemen, the great principles of the Whig party, for which you have so long and so nobly struggled amid periods of the greatest gloom, and notwithstanding the most cruel disappointments, are my principles. (Cheers, three times given, and three times repeated, with cries, "we know that.") "We have made the nomination for that." I have long cherished these principles. I shall maintain them hereafter, as I have maintained them heretofore. (Cheers.)—They are, as I understand them,—

A sound National Currency.

A just limitation of Executive power.

A tariff for revenue, discriminating for the purpose of incidental protection to domestic industry. (Loud cheering.)

An equal and fair distribution of the proceeds of the Public Lands among the several States of the Union.

These, as I understand them, continued Mr Frelinghuysen, are the cardinal although not all the principles of the Whig Party; and after what I have already said, I need hardly add that they will find in me a humble but willing advocate in whatever position I may be placed. (Cheers.)

We need an Executive administration of the Government, Mr Frelinghuysen continued to say, that will fairly and faithfully carry out the principles of the Constitution, exercising its full powers, where powers are given it, and keeping strictly within its limitations, where powers are limited, conceding when there ought to be concession, but firm when concession would result in injury—liberally maintaining its compromises, but as independently carrying out its positive commands—and yet, who will take no other responsibilities upon himself but what he finds there. It is a matter, as it seems to me, for thankfulness, that in a distinguished citizen of Kentucky all these principles are embodied, and that he is not only pledged to them by a long public life, but that such is the truthfulness and fidelity of his nature, that the people can well trust him with power to carry them out. (Great cheering.)

Gentlemen, the political life of Henry Clay for thirty years past, has been only an illustration of Whig principles, and the history of his life for twenty years would be the history of his country. Whenever there was a struggle for the protection of American labor against foreign industry, where, but on the side of his country was Henry Clay? Whenever there was a struggle to limit the alarming and overgrown magnitude of Executive power, where, but on the side of the people was Henry Clay? Or when the vast public domain was in jeopardy from being offered for sale in the political market, where but on the side of faith, of honor, of justice to all, was our illustrious champion and friend? (Great cheering.) In all of these great questions, his voice has been heard from the first. In all of the combats concerning them, he has led the van. (Cheers.) He has never compromised the dignity of his position to gain a vote, or the momentary breath of popular favor, but with an eye ever steadily fixed upon an approving public, he has fearlessly discharged what he has deemed to be his duty.

(Cheers.) I don't believe a purer patriot breathes on the whole continent of America—(cheers)—and for proof, I point to a long public life, passed in stirring scenes, which has never conflicted with probity, or honor—a life unsullied by meanness, or grovelling appeal to improper ambition, in all of which his principles have been put forth, with ardor and as clear as light, while every pulse beating within him, has been for the welfare and true glory of his country.—If such a man does not deserve the name of patriot, I do not know who does deserve the name, or who can. (Cheers.) They say he is ambitious. I dare say he is. Be it so, then. But point me to the time when he has not sacrificed ambition, and himself, if what he deemed his duty called. I happen to know that on that great question, the public lands, the question was thrust upon him by an adverse Senate, to make him unpopular in the West. He entered upon it with a zeal characteristic of himself.—As a Western man, he had a tempting field for political traffic in the whole public domain. He might have used it for the purposes of ambition. He might have held it out as a tempting bait for the whole West. But his heart was as large as his country. (Cheers.) He studied out the title of this public domain. He knew where it came from, and justice told him where it belonged. Fearless, as is his nature, he flung out his banner—"Distribution of the proceeds among the States," and he nailed it to the mast. (Great cheering, and cries of "that is good.")

I have said of Mr Clay, continued Mr Frelinghuysen, that his heart was as large as his country. A single instance of it was his course on the Tariff in the arduous session of 1832.—Perhaps no man living could more tenderly cherish a conception of his own brain, or an offspring of his own creation than he who has been called the Father of the American system. The principles of protection to American industry embodied in the Tariff law, Mr Clay has cherished as he has his life. But when, in 1831-2, an unnatural excitement was got up in South Carolina against a law, in the excitement of which he did not participate, he saw it was necessary to save his country from peril, even to make a sacrifice of what he loved so much. He looked for time to instruct the whole country in the necessity and utility of protecting home industry, and he was willing to have a trace of eight years to give that time. He said to his friends in the South, "we can all see how an Executive can lead us into a fraternal war, but how he can get us out, that we never can foresee. Dear as the Tariff is to all, he said, we must give it up for the moment to save our countrymen from shedding each other's blood—to preserve the Union and the cause of human liberty throughout the world. I shall rejoice, my friends, if you can go with me, but do what you will, I must offer myself as a victim up to peace." (Cheers.) He became the great Pacificator of that alarming time,—"and blessed are the peace-makers," says the highest authority that addresses man. (Cheering and loud applause.) Thus, gentlemen, in every view I can take of my position, I have reason for gratitude and thankfulness to you and to the country; that my name is connected with a name that reflects honor even upon so humble an associate—and it shall be my pride and my gratification, to merit the confidence your kindness has bestowed upon me. (Applause.)

One word, gentlemen, for my honored mother, the State that gave me birth—where repose the ashes of my ancestors—and to which I am indebted for many marks of regard prior to this of late. I assure you, gentlemen, New Jersey will be true to all the principles of Whigs.—Whatever may be her temporary vibrations from an abundant prosperity, or from local or transitory ambition, she is Whig to the heart and core. (Loud cheers.) We can never be anything else but Whig, Whig, first, Whig last, Whig always—(cheers.) A State cradled in the bloodiest scenes of the American revolution, whose hills, and valleys, and plains are stirring all with revolutionary invocations, she would be false to herself, and an unnatural offspring, if she could forget the principles born with her, and bled for on her bosom. (Cheers.) No, she can never cease to be Whig till the plains of Monmouth, the heights of Princeton, and the streets of Trenton are forgotten,—till she tears out from history the leaves of her glory, and blots from her escutcheon the brightest gems that are emblazoned upon it. I promise you, gentlemen, I promise the Union, New Jersey will be true to herself, and to the whole country. (Cheers, loud and prolonged, amid which Mr Frelinghuysen retired.)
